

Tourism upbeat despite price hikes

RISING food price inflation driving the increase in operating costs will not severely affect the SA tourism sector due to its continued resilience and increasing foreign arrivals boosted by the weak rand. The latest figures from the TBCSA Tourism Business Index revealed the sector performed steadily in the first quarter of the year despite tough business conditions. Business says drought and economic challenges will affect tourism's bottom line. – TNA Reporter