

Publication
SATURDAY STAR – SCHOOL SPORT
Page	Date	AVE (ZAR)
7	Sat 08 June 2019	9737.9

How SA sport applies its mind

“THE time has come,” the Walrus said, “To talk of many things: Of shoes – and ships – and sealing-wax – Of cabbages – and kings.” (The Walrus and the Carpenter by Lewis Carroll).

Once again it is time for Mind Sports South Africa (MSSA) to select its national squads.

The squads too provide a pool of players from which the National Protea Teams that will represent South Africa in its various disciplines shall be drawn.

The system of selecting squads is a useful method for enforcing training.

It is, therefore, important that all athletes who have qualified, check the lists online to ensure that there are no misstatements or omissions. Should an athlete wish to make him or herself eligible for selection, they must write to mindsportscorrespondence@gmail.com for all the necessary forms.

KEAMOGETSWE Ramaboa (NWU – Vaal) is the only female to have qualified for selection to MSSA’s national squad for international

SUCH is the standard of play by Samson Thinane (NWU – Vaal) that he has qualified for the selection process for both checkers and Russian draughts variants.